E and I went this evening to the Ethiopian National Day reception at the Redoute.

We had dinner with the Jaretzkis and afterwards Rebecca Wellington and Bill Tyler came to see me about the latest development re Berlin access. We sat up until after midnight and drafted the two following telegrams:

(Texts on following pages 222, 223, 224 and 225, 226).

Thursday, July 24, 1958

Mr. Norman Hamilton, former Congressman from Portsmouth, Virginia who was defeated many years ago by Colgate Darden or, as he puts it, was "licked by Dupont money", called with Cleaves Manning, Naval Aide to Governor Almond, his grandson, Norman Hamilton, III and Leslie Schultz, Representative for Europe of the Virginia Ports Authority. They are preparing the way for a visit the end of September of a large Virginia delegation sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce. Mr. Hamilton is 81 but [redacted] still lively. We had a good talk and, fortunately, he did not linger [redacted] long on the subject of school segregation in the South. He thinks that since the school term opens in September Governor Almond himself may not be able to accompany the delegation and may be replaced by ex-Governor John Battle.
